
CONTENTS

Introduction	p.	7
Jean-Marc Narbonne, The Critical Spirit and the Demands of Reason in Ancient Greece: Development, Posterity, Actuality	p.	9
Chiara Militello, Emotions and Reason on Alexander of Aphrodisias: the Place of aidôs in the Human Soul	”	19
Alexandra Michalewski, Hasard, vermine et difformité. Quelques figures de l'irrationnel dans la philosophie de Plotin	”	35
R. Loredana Cardullo, Evil as alogon in the Post-Plotinian Neoplatonism. Again on the Uniqueness of the Principle, between Athens and Alexandria	”	47
Anne Sheppard, Neoplatonists and Pantomime Dancers	”	65
Sebastian F. Moro Tornese, The Metaphysical Meaning of the Musical Scale of Plato's Timaeus in Proclus	”	79
Daniele Iozzia, Dissimilarity and Symbolic Language in the Representations of the A-rational between Late Antiquity and Middle Ages	”	105
Andrea Vella, John of Jandun on Philosophy, Religion, Pleasure and Truth: Two Interpretations of Averroes' Introduction to the Commentary on Physics 3	”	127
Concetto Martello, Philosophy as a Rational Knowledge in Central Middle Ages	”	135
Syliane Malinowski-Charles, Reason and Desire: Hobbes and Spinoza on Conatus, Reason and the Emotions	”	151

Salvatore Vasta, Philosophical Reason and Scientific Reason. The 'Materialistic' Contribution to the Evolutionary Shift	” 169
Krzysztof Brzehczyń, Between Political Realism and Political Utopianism. On the Political Philosophy of the Committee of the Social Self-Defence 'KOR'	” 187
Francesco Coniglione, 'Rejected Knowledge' and the Tradition of Reason. A Few Hints on their Necessary and Inextricable Link	” 205
Santo Di Nuovo, Reason and Emotion: a Neuroscientific Perspective	” 227